Dating, courtship, or whatever you choose to call the selection process for a life mate is not the same day to day relationship that a long term romantic relationship may evolve into over a lifetime. Unfortunately, for most of us, good looks, slim figures, great hair, perfect teeth, our best manners, endless energy and even taunt muscles only last so long. Wealth and health can change suddenly for the better or worst. These short thought provoking questions were created to help you as a couple talk through the issues that, if left unchecked, could destroy your relationship over time. By reading this book and being willing to ask, answer, and discuss the hard questions before you are deeply committed to a potential relationship you are showing that you are looking for tools to be successful in what, for some, is elusive: a long term loving relationship.
